

At RayboylS, our primary objective is not on making placements. It's on building mutually beneficial long term relationships, especially with our candidates. We have been helping top professionals in the storage market advance their careers for over 8 years now, and almost our entire network has been built on referrals. We do our best to help people, and they tend to return the favor.

We represent opportunities from many of the Tier 1 industry leading manufacturers, as well as several bleeding-edge startups. Many of the searches that we perform are not public knowledge and are on an exclusive or retained basis. Our clients turn to us when they have an expansion head-count upcoming, or when they need to confidentially top-grade their team.

We understand the critical role confidentiality plays when considering a potential job change, and we guarantee to keep all of your information absolutely confidential from any client or prospect until you commit to exploring an opportunity with us.

Many of the candidates we work with use us a resource to find out about market trends, detailed company information, and to ask for our advice, guidance, and counsel on companies that they are considering taking a look at. We will always provide honest feedback and share whatever insight we can provide. We take the approach that the more people you try and help, the more it will come back to you.

Bottom line- we don't believe there is another search firm who knows the storage industry and can provide a better service than we can.
